1. The wharf across from the city side slopes down into the water and is paved. A few small wooden brows extend into the water and small ships moor here. About 200 m on each side of the red leading light on the northern ballast quay there are some oil tanks; there are six horizontal and one upright tank. Possibly there also are tanks underground. The tanks are kept in good condition. 25X1
2. Twelve railroad cars with one quite heavy gun on each were standing on the track somewhat behind the northern ballast quay. There were canvas-covers over the muzzles of the guns.
